How can the handsome, congenial Mr. Smith be the same man who terrorizes Phoenix and her sister?

Should you get into the car of someone you barely know? Hard to resist when the driver is Jessup Smith, the best-looking teacher in school. That night, he drives sixteen-year-old Phoenix and her little sister Sasha—both brilliant misfits—home. A few days later, their mother, Erika, lets herself be seduced by Mr. Smith. Not long after, he’s moving in, filling the empty space left by Phoenix and Sasha’s father, who left the family without warning last summer.

At first, Mr. Smith seems too good to be true. He can be a little strict and controlling, sure, but nothing to worry about. Until it begins: first a kick, then a slap. Soon Phoenix is descending into a violent nightmare, afraid of making the least mistake and desperate to protect her little sister. As Phoenix and Sasha feel their world closing in, help may come from an unexpected place.

Nastasia Rugani is a French author who has written two previous books for children. About Phoenix is her first novel for young adults. She lives near Paris, France.
Imagine a world without prisons, lawyers, or courtrooms—where justice is done.

What if there were no prisons? Alternative approaches to dealing with crime are underway around the world to explore how victims, offenders, and communities can heal rifts and repair damage. It’s often called restorative justice. It’s a way to think about the deeper reasons behind crimes, and suggests that by building more caring communities, it’s possible to change society—and ourselves.

Making It Right relates true stories of young people who are working in innovative ways to further conflict resolution and heal past wounds. The book begins with individual injustices, such as bullying, and works up to collective ones, like wars. Each chapter begins with a dramatic fictional account, making the topic engaging and relevant for kids.

Restorative justice isn’t going to change the world overnight, nor will it end all crime or prevent all wars. But it’s a powerful way to get teens thinking about how they can participate in building a more peaceful society.

In many countries around the world, universal access to education is a seemingly unattainable dream; however, determined individuals with vision and drive have made this dream come true for many.

Fight to Learn highlights people such as Okello, a former child soldier in Uganda, who founded a school for children like him whose education was derailed by war; Chicago teen Deonte Tanner, who changed one high school’s culture from guns and gangs to talking and learning; Shannen Koostachin, a feisty 13-year-old Cree whose fight for the right of First Nations children to have proper schools endured even after her untimely death.

The uplifting stories of people who were undeterred in their fight to bring education to children will leave young readers with excellent models of how to mobilize support when fighting for a cause you believe in.

Laura Scandiffio is the author of many non-fiction books for young readers, including the award-winning People Who Said No and Outlaws, Spies, and Gangsters. She lives in Toronto, ON.

BAD GIRLS OF FASHION
Style Rebels From Cleopatra to Lady Gaga
by Jennifer Croll
illustrated by Ada Buchholc

Clothes make the woman—and can change the world.

The title says it all; Bad Girls of Fashion explores the lives of ten famous women who have used clothing to make a statement, break rules, attract power, or express their individuality. Some of the famous women featured are Marie Antoinette, Coco Chanel, Madonna, and Lady Gaga, all of whom changed the world’s perceptions of how women should—or could—act. Sidebar subjects include: Elizabeth I, Marilyn Monroe, and Rihanna.

Photos illuminate the text, while edgy, vividly colored illustrations depict the subjects with interpretive flair. Readers will learn not only about changing fashion styles through history, but about changing historical attitudes toward women. The links between fashion and art, film, music, politics, and feminism are also explored. With an energetic, appealing writing style, Croll demonstrates how through the ages, women—often without other means of power—have used fashion as a tool, and how their influence continues to shape the way women present themselves today.

Jennifer Croll is the author of Fashion That Changed the World and has written for magazines including NYLON, Adbusters, and Dazed and Confused. She lives in Vancouver, BC.

Ada Buchholc is a Polish illustrator whose clients around the world include New Republic, Little White Lies, and enRoute.

Cleanliness is next to godliness. At least that was the point of view espoused by John Wesley in 18th century England. But accounts of people bathing go back to the Bronze Age in the Indus Valley.

All the Dirt on Getting Clean is a lively, informative exploration of the evolution of personal hygiene. Starting with a number of myths about cleanliness, the author gives a quick overview of the topic. Throughout most of history, people rejected the notion of keeping clean, with some exceptions—the ancient Romans were obsessive about it. Readers will discover how the definition of cleanliness in one part of the world may differ radically from another. In Zimbabwe, for example, cleanliness means coating your washed body with a mixture of oil and dirt!

There is just enough of a gross factor that young readers will find the book as entertaining as it is enlightening. Colorful spreads, lots of sidebars, humorous illustrations, and photos make it ideal for browsing as well as reading in depth.

KATHERINE ASHENBURG writes for a wide variety of publications, including the New York Times, The Walrus, and Toronto Life. She is the author of three non-fiction books for adults, including The Dirt on Clean. She lives in Toronto, ON.

THE GREAT NUMBER RUMBLE
REVISED AND UPDATED
A Story of Math in Surprising Places
by Cora Lee and Gillian O’Reilly
illustrated by Lil Crump

“…a gold mine for places in our lives in which mathematical ideas are ‘surprisingly hidden.’”
—CM Magazine

Math can show up in the most unlikely places! When the schools in Jeremy’s town ban math, all the kids cheer, all except his friend Sam, a self-proclaimed mathnik, who sets out to prove that math is not only important, but fun. Running parallel to the fictional narrative are informative sidebars that discuss the weird, puzzling, and amusing aspects of mathematics. Some topics covered are math in nature, art, music, magic and tricks, crime solving, and sports.

First published in 2007, this revised edition features more visual elements, simplified explanations of the more advanced topics, and updated information including computer animation and algorithms. New artwork by Lil Crump brings the pages to life with lively cartoons, while photographs illustrate key concepts. The dynamic layout invites even math-phobic readers to dive in.

Cora Lee is a scientific writer for the biopharmaceutical and medical device industries. She also writes about science for kids and encourages girls to stay in STEM (science, technology, engineering and math). She lives in Vancouver, BC.

Gillian O’Reilly is a freelance writer and editor and is the author of Slangalicious: Where We Got That Crazy Lingo. She lives in Toronto, ON.

Lil Crump is the illustrator of DNA Detective. Her art has appeared in magazines and gallery shows, as well as on cards, posters, and games. She lives in St. Margaret’s Bay, NS.

November 1940. One hundred and sixty Jewish children, forced by the Nazis to leave their orphanage, walk through the streets of Warsaw. They are heartbroken, but led by Doctor Korczak, their beloved director, the children are defiantly joyful. Their new home is in the ghetto where day by day, more people arrive. Some are forced to live on the street and freeze to death. Others die of disease and starvation. Though they lack food, warmth, and freedom, the children’s spirits are sustained by the devotion of “Mister Doctor.”

But the Jewish children will never grow up: in August 1942, they board the train that will carry them to the death camps. Offered his freedom, Doctor Korczak refuses to abandon the children and proudly joins them on their last journey.

This profoundly moving picture book allows young readers to meet the remarkable man whose humanity and bravery still stand as a glimmer of light in one of history’s darkest periods.

Mr. Fox ‘devours’ books—literally!

Meet Mr. Fox, who loves books so much that every time he finishes one, he eats it (with a little salt and pepper, of course)! His insatiable appetite drives him to seek more and more books, until one day, he discovers the local library, where he can “devour” books to his heart’s content. Eventually, the librarian catches him “sampling” from the collection and bans him from the library.

Down on his luck, the crafty Mr. Fox must find other ways to satisfy his cravings. His attempt to rob the local bookstore, however, ends badly. Arrested for stealing, Mr. Fox lands in jail, where he discovers a surprising way to satisfy his literary cravings (and become rich and famous).

With its deft combination of humor and whimsy, and bright, edgy artwork, The Fox Who Ate Books is a tongue-in-cheek approach to promote a love of books and reading. The ever-inventive, wily Mr. Fox is the perfect anti-hero whose antics are guaranteed to make young readers laugh, while the play on words will delight older children.

TO BURP OR NOT TO BURP
A Guide to Your Body in Space

by Dr. Dave Williams and Loredana Cunti

Find out what happens to your body in space—
from someone who’s been there.

Of all the questions astronauts are asked by kids, the most frequent one is “How do you go to the toilet in space?” This book not only answers that question, but many others about the effect of zero gravity on the human body: How do you brush your hair in space? What happens when you sweat? What does food taste like? The best thing is that the answers are provided by someone who speaks from first-hand experience: Dr. Dave Williams, a NASA astronaut who has accomplished three space walks.

Using age-appropriate language, this book explains the different phenomena that astronauts encounter during a mission. The bright, colorful pages, short blocks of text accompanied by photos (many of which were taken by Dr. Dave during his space missions), and humorous illustrations make this a very attractive choice for young readers. The opening message from Dr. Dave empowers kids to follow his example by believing in themselves and following their dreams.

DR. DAVE WILLIAMS is a Canadian astronaut who participated in spaceflights aboard two NASA space shuttles; he also became an aquanaut at the world’s only underwater research laboratory. Dr. Williams is currently the CEO of a hospital just outside Toronto.

LOREDANA CUNTI is a specialist in children’s entertainment and a former Senior Vice President of Children’s Programming at Universal Pictures. She has developed a number of book-based characters for television including Geronimo Stilton, Pink Panther, and most recently, George Green by Stephen and Lucy Hawking. To Burp or Not to Burp is her first book. She lives in Toronto, ON.
A captivating story that shows the resourcefulness of poverty-stricken children around the world.

In some unnamed town in Latin America, Pablo and his sister spend every day at “Treasure Mountain,” the local dump. There, they rummage through the mounds of garbage looking for items that their mother can sell in order to provide food for the family. Occasionally, they find a “real” treasure like some still-edible food or a picture book which Pablo delights in, even though he can’t read.

The work is exhausting, and sometimes not very lucrative, but the worst thing they have to contend with is Filthy-Face, a brutish bully who steals the finds of all the children. But one day, Pablo discovers a real treasure: a gold chain. Will he be able to keep it from falling into the hands of Filthy-Face? Simply written with highly expressive illustrations, this book brings home the reality of child poverty around the world.

Andrée Poulin is the award-winning author of over 30 books for young readers, including La plus grosse poutine du monde (The Biggest Poutine in the World), winner of the 2014 TD Canadian Children’s Literature Award, French language. She lives in Gatineau, Quebec.

LILA AND THE CROW
written and illustrated by Gabrielle Grimard

Lila is bullied because of her dark skin, but the crows have a solution for that!

Lila has just moved to a new town and can’t wait to make friends at school. But on the first day, a boy points at her and shouts: “A crow! A crow! The new girl’s hair is black like a crow!” Lila’s heart grows as heavy as a stone.

The next day, Lila covers her hair. But this time, the boy points at her dark skin. When she covers her face, he mocks her dark eyes. Now every day at school, Lila hides under her turtleneck, dark glasses, and hat. And every day when she goes home, she sees a crow that seems to want to tell her something. Lila ignores the bird and even throws rocks at it, but it won’t go away.

Meanwhile, the great autumn festival is approaching. While the other kids prepare their costumes, Lila is sadder and lonelier than ever. At her lowest point of despair, a magical encounter with the crow opens Lila’s eyes to the beauty of being different, and gives her the courage to proudly embrace her true self.

GABRIELLE GRIMARD has illustrated over 30 picture books, including When I Was Eight and Not My Girl. This is her first book as both author and illustrator. She lives in Quebec, Canada.

It’s the first day of school and Miss Macintosh is certain about one thing: she isn’t going! As she snuggles back under the covers, the doorbell rings. In comes Mr. Bellweather, the school principal, who assures her that all kindergarten teachers have first day jitters.

Soon, other teachers arrive to help get her out the door. Mrs. Burger, the lunch lady, makes sure she has a good breakfast; Mrs. Sketcher, the art teacher, helps her pick out clothes. Still, Miss Macintosh is anxious. What if she can’t find her class? What if no one likes her?

When she finally stands at the front of her class, she can tell that the children are nervous too. That’s when she comes up with an idea to put everyone at ease—including herself.

A perfect read-aloud to children who may be anxious about school, this book will get them laughing—and reassure them—as they get ready for the big day.

ANGELA’S AIRPLANE
BOARD BOOK

by Robert Munsch
illustrated by Michael Martchenko

A classic Munsch story now available as a Board Book.

When Angela goes to the airport with her father, he gets “lost.” As she wanders around looking for him, she sees an empty airplane.
Once inside, she presses one button, then another, until the plane takes off. Luckily, one of the buttons is for the control tower. Angela survives the adventure without a scratch. The same can’t be said for the plane.

One of Robert Munsch’s most popular titles is now available as a Board Book. With simplified text but all the original illustrations, Angela’s Airplane Board Book is a wonderful way to engage very young children in a simple story. Michael Martchenko’s funny illustrations and variations in the text colors and positioning make this a visual treat as well as a favorite story.

ROBERT MUNSCH is one of North America’s bestselling authors of children’s books.

MICHAEL MARTCHENKO has long been associated with Robert Munsch’s books; however, he has also illustrated books by other authors, including Loris Lesynski. Boy Soup, written by Loris and illustrated by Michael, was chosen as the 2013
TD Grade One Book Giveaway.

The amazing innovations of Latin Americans from ancient times to today—Spanish edition now in paperback.

This Spanish version of Latin Americans Thought of It describes the vibrant traditions and innovations that are the result of thousands of years of civilization in Latin America.

Travel from the ancient hidden city of Machu Picchu high in the Andes, past Mayan ruins over 2,000 years old, to the bustling modern cities of São Paulo and Buenos Aires. Along the way, readers will learn about many of Latin America’s contributions to the world: rodeo, carnival, chocolate, coffee, piñata, tango, and salsa, to name only a few. Many of these have become part of the daily lives of people all around the world.

Lo inventaron los latinoamericanos features a rich array of photos along with informative text divided into sections, including:

• Clothing • Architecture • Communication • Arts and Crafts
• Everyday Inventions • Sports.

Kids with a Latin American heritage will look with pride at the numerous innovations that have come to us from that part of the world.
